INVENTION MAKES THE WORLD GO FORWARD

(Copyrighted 1942)

By ALFRED LAWSON
UNLESS YOU KNOW THESE THINGS YOU ARE NOT EDUCATED

An invention is an original contrivance produced for a specific purpose.

There are natural and artificial inventions. Natural inventions are produced under the direction of the ALMIGHTY. They are operated according to unchangeable laws. Artificial Inventions are produced under the direction of man. They are operated according to the changing conditions of man's existence.

The ALMIGHTY utilizes everything without the loss of anything. HE invents machines, such as animals, that can THINK. Man utilizes anything with the loss of most everything. He invents machines, such as automobiles that cannot THINK.

Now, if man could develop within himself a consciousness equal to that of the ALMIGHTY then he too could invent machines that could THINK. But there is a serious drawback to the development of such a powerful consciousness in man and that drawback is GREED.

The ALMIGHTY gives to man everything, but man gives to the ALMIGHTY nothing. The greatness is all in the ALMIGHTY. The greed is all in man.

Selfish humans cheat and steal from one another the things that the ALMIGHTY gives to all creatures free. No selfish creature can ever be a great inventor. An unselfish inventor creates advanced methods for principles, not money.

The Solar System, with its Sun and Earth, is a great invention that is made for all living creatures—not for just one solitary human being. The Sun, the Earth, the air, is for the benefit of everybody.

Man was not designed as a pig. He was intended to become intelligent enough to eventually assume the general management of the Solar System and the mechanization thereof. Of course man with a consciousness of a pig could never have enough intelligence to manage a Solar System. It is more natural that the human being who develops the consciousness of a pig in this life will, according to the law of MANEUVERABILITY, become a real pig in the next life and literally swim in the filth of his greed.

One of the sure things about life is that, according to the law of action and reaction, soon or late, one gets back in equal proportions the values or degradations that one puts into it.

According to LAWSONOMY, a knowledge of the principles of life makes all tasks easy. So, if one wants to produce great inventions, one must first gain knowledge of the principles of life in order to do so.

To begin with, one must first understand the magnitude of SPACE which has no top, bottom, sides, size, shape inside nor outside and is immovable.

Next, one must understand that the physical contents that takes various forms, moves about in SPACE eternally. Such is called MATTER which is constantly being separated into different forms of mass and volume in which mass occupies lesser space and volume greater space.

The difference in mass and volume is caused by the difference in proportions of the different elements entering into the different substances thereof, which cause the difference in densities.

Continuous pulling and pushing of matter about SPACE by SUCTION and PRESSURE causes a DIFFERENCE IN DENSITY that enables one substance to penetrate another substance. Such I have named PENETRABILITY, which is the basic law of MOVEMENT.

Although this writer publicly announced in the year of 1922 the basic law of movement which proves that matter cannot be moved by any other process than SUCTION and PRESSURE, still college professors continue to teach the theory of ENERGY as being the cause of movement.

But when an enquiring student asks, "what is energy," the professors usually answer, "nobody knows."

After more than sixty years of thought along this line, I can positively state that there is no such stuff in existence as ENERGY.

But these Professors say that although they do not know what Energy is, they are sure that there is such stuff because they can measure it.

Well, the force of moving matter which they measure is merely the result of the push of Pressure and the pull of Suction. For instance, a greater quantity of water passing within a current from Pressure to Suction terminals creates more water-power than a lesser quantity of water passing within a current from Pressure to Suction terminals does, that's all. Or, a greater quantity of Electricity passing within a current from Pressure to Suction terminals creates more Electric-power than a lesser quantity of Electricity passing within a current from Pressure to Suction terminals.

When man comprehends my elucidations of Densities, Scope and Spheres, he will then understand that Electricity is a substance, as water is a substance, except that it is of a different Density, and, because man's SCOPE has been designed for a different SPHERE he is unable to see Electricity as he is able to see water. It is just one of the many forms of matter that man cannot see or understand because its particles do not come within his SCOPE.

Matter everywhere contains particles of electricity but some Substances contain more of these particles than others. It is the proportion of the different elements drawn together in the different substances that causes their difference in density. It is the Pressure of matter that releases the different elements that compose Electricity which fly away in currents to different Suction points. It is the quantity of the elements that constitute Electricity, released by pressure, that flows from Pressure terminals to Suction terminals that decides the power of the currents. It is the opposite sex of the Particles that constitute Electricity being located at opposite terminals that causes Pressure and Suction movement of it. The male particles cause Pressure and the female particles cause Suction.

Human beings learned to use water before they understood its composition. Now they are learning to use Electricity before they understand its composition. They are now stumbling along and offering their different theories of it. But students will only make straight headway in the knowledge of Electricity when they are able to grasp the basic principles of PENETRABILITY as outlined in the different volumes of LAWSONOMY. They should demand provable facts and nothing else.

Before one can become a great inventor one must not only understand the difference in such densities as less-ether, ether, cold, heat, light, electricity, mentality, sound, gases, air, water and solids but one must learn that particles of matter are divisible and subdivisible without end and are also constructable into larger and larger formations without limit.

If all particles of matter were alike there could be no comparison and therefore there would be no size to anything. For that reason SCOPE is essential for sight and comparison of different particles composing different densities.

Through the Different grades of glasses man can bring to his vision things both large and small which he cannot see with the naked eye as man's eye was made to see things within his own SCOPE. His eye was designed to see through air but not to see the different living things within the air.

In my book MENTALITY, which everybody should read a hundred or more times in order to enlarge their thinking instruments, I explained how the MENORGS built the eyes of man as great magnifying glasses through which they could see for themselves formations within the Earthly SPHERE and then how they taught man to build greater magnifying glasses, known as telescopes through which he could see formations out into the Cosmic SPHERE.

The MENORGS are the real thinkers of man, whom they design and put into seed of a lesser SCOPE and then nourish and expand until he emerges as a full grown creature of a greater SCOPE.

Ever since this writer was a baby, and that was more than seventy years ago, he spent most of his time thinking about the greater things of life. He was more interested in the way the Creator ran the Universe than he was in the way man harnessed a horse or milked a cow. He began to investigate the cause of moving matter at about four years of age and he started to reason the purpose and method of his thinking a few years later. But as it is positively dangerous to talk about things that nobody else can understand he confined his thoughts to himself during a large part of his human existence.

However, in 1904, he published his book BORN AGAIN and then in 1922 he announced publicly the Law of PENETRABILITY. In 1923 his book MANLIFE was copyrighted in which he announced that man's thinking was accomplished by billions of internal Mental Organisms that supervised the design, construction and operation of his mental instruments. Subsequently he combined these two words into the one word MENORGS and introduced it into his copyrighted book MENTALITY.

The ALMIGHTY uses these microscopic MENORGS as designers and builders in the changeability of matter. They first designed and built up plant life and then animal life on Earth.

The MENORGS first built seed in which they made their own homes. Then by drawing within the seed, through the power of suction, different elements from the soil, water, air and sun they thus expanded their seed into grass, vines, bushes and trees, from which they produced nourishing ingredients, such as grains, berries, nuts, fruits and vegetables. These different plants were constructed by different MENORGS from different designs, according to the different materials with which they had to work. They used different suction stations to draw upward through currents the different elements they required for building purposes.

From the substances cast out of plant life, added to and mixed with elements from the air, water and sun, these wonderful minute planners subsequently invented and constructed millions of different species of animals that nature uses for absorbing and assimilating waste matter.

Every known animal has a purpose in life and a specific duty to perform according to their various qualifications. But the ALMIGHTY wanted a supervising agent to manage the Earth and all that it contains therein and so HE directed the MENORGS to design and build a superconscious being upon humane principles that would be capable of executing such orders, and performing such duties as HE would from time to time prescribe.

It was a very crude thing that the MENORGS first produced which was designated as man, but they continue to improve him with the object in view of constantly increasing his intelligence and enlarging his consciousness until eventually he will become a useful thing in the Universe.

To enlarge a microbe to a full grown man is accomplished by adding cells to one another. The image and machinery of a human being is built into the microscopic seed and then gradually enlarged by drawing into it, by suction, new substances and casting out of it, by pressure, waste matter.

So the MENORGS build up man from within from substances they draw in from without. They extract their building materials from different densities, from which they take particles of light, heat, cold, sound, electricity, mentality and various gases and mold them together as a large workable formation.

They combine these microscopic particles of lesser density into forms of greater density. They make solid matter by contracting volume into mass.

There is nothing mysterious about the construction and operation of a human being, so that it is lazy ignorance for one to live without knowledge of the machine that carries one through this earthly existence.

It would be just as easy for this writer to design a great COSMIC machine, billions of times larger than himself, that could THINK, as it was for an early MENORG to design a human machine, billions of times larger than itself, that could THINK.

That would be an INVENTION that would glorify man and enthuse the ALMIGHTY.
