SOLDIERS SAILORS AND AIRMEN

PROTECT YOURSELF BY MANEUVERABILITY

Copyrighted 1942

By ALFRED LAWSON

UNLESS YOU KNOW THESE THINGS YOU ARE NOT EDUCATED

Soldiers, sailors and airmen: these words you must consider thoughtfully, for your own sake as well as for the sake of mankind generally.

First, let me assure you that there is no more risk of being killed or maimed in the army, navy or air service than there is in any so-called peaceful occupation.

Far more Americans have been killed and maimed during peace times since the first world war than were killed and maimed during that war.

Positively, neither peace nor war decides one's fate. That is caused by the reactions of one's own actions. Failing to do your natural duty is a bad action that is punishable by a bad reaction.

The cowardly wretch who, under one pretense or another, refuses to fight to protect his own freedom as well as the freedom of his associates or descendants eventually deteriorates into the slave and footstool of the dominant dictator who WILL fight to enslave him.

Life always was, is now and always will be maintained according to Natural Laws.

From the first book of LAWSONOMY we learn that:

"Life is divided into three main parts known as physical, mental and spiritual manifestations.

"The physical manifestation is that part pertaining to matter and the movement thereof.

"The mental manifestation is that part that develops consciousness through the organization and utilization of material things.

"The spiritual manifestation is that part that directs constructive planning towards purification and perfection of purpose.

"The scope of life is graduated according to the consciousness developed through the power of the mental system; the sense of perception being graded to the scale needed in each living thing.

"The principles of life are simple but immutable. Although there is constant readjustment of the manifestations of life the laws that govern those readjustments are unchangeable.

"The two agents that cause the readjustment of manifestations of physical life are constructiveness and destructiveness."

The DIRECTOR of changing matter creates through microscopic constructive MENORGS such living things as are needed to absorb used matter and change it into something useful.

Microscopic destructive DISORGS are used to disorganize and disintegrate physical bodies until they are decayed and useless as living things.

So the actual success or failure of a human being depends entirely upon whether he allows the constructive MENORGS to preserve and improve his life or whether he permits the destructive DISORGS to contaminate and destroy his life.

The constructive MENORGS will protect man physically, mentally and spiritually if his soul will co-operate with them for that purpose.

The destructive DISORGS will bring early decay and death to man if his soul is too weak to oppose their destroying attacks upon him through degrading habits.

LAWSONOMY explains only those truths that are provable. It shows how Natural Laws are forever unchangeable. They do not work one way for one person and a different way for someone else.

Should any one, be he wise-man or ignoramus, thrust his unprotected hand into a red hot fire it will be burned away and the elements of which it is composed will be disintegrated by the penetrating heat and fly off into space to be used by nature for other purposes. In fact, one's entire physical body can be dissolved within a few moments by excessive heat and fly away into particles to be used in other formations.

That is a positive truth that cannot be disproved.

Therefore, it is the duty of every human being to learn all of the provable truths of LAWSONOMY and live in harmony with them. It is dangerous to go contrary to them.

Man has now arrived at the stage of his growth where he can weigh and consider the value of Natural Laws, a knowledge of which will advance him to a higher state of usefulness.

As it is within the power of present day man to learn the nature of physical laws as they actually exist, so by being thus fortified with such knowledge it affords him an opportunity to obtain a better understanding of the nature of spiritual laws, and, as it is positively dangerous to disobey physical laws, so it is positively dangerous to disobey spiritual laws.

To quote from the Third Book of Lawsonomy, entitled, THE ALMIGHTY:

"There is a law that protects right and punishes wrong and whosoever breaks that law loses God's protection and suffers consequences equal to the offense committed.

"That law is MANEUVERABILITY.

"The law of Maneuverability will always protect one who does what is right and always punish one who does what is wrong.

"This is accomplished through spiritual guidance of those who do right into paths that lead away from danger and by driving those who do wrong into the paths that lead to punishment.

"There is no way for a wrongdoer to escape the punishment deserved. It is as certain as bad reaction follows bad action.

"God gave to man, through His builders, the Menorgs, a physical machine by which he could move himself from place to place by his own initiated power.

"This God-given machine, the earthly home of man, also contains a marvelous mental system through which these billions of menorgs can communicate with one another at all times in reference to the work of keeping man alive.

"To keep man alive and properly operate this machine these menorgs require raw materials with which they generate heat and power for that purpose.

"These raw materials come from the outside of man and are furnished by God in the shape of vegetable matter developed through the mixture of earthly gases and the sun rays.

"This vegetable matter is furnished so abundantly by the Creator that hundreds of billions of human creatures could be nourished on earth for millions of years to come if they will work according to God's Natural Laws instead of working against His Laws as they have been doing for thousands of years past.

"Now, spiritual action and reaction are graded in man, either for or against him, as he himself thinks. Good thoughts bring good reaction and bad thoughts bring bad reaction. As you give so you receive.

"The Law of Maneuverability will work to protect you if you deserve it, or it will work to punish you if you deserve it.

"You go to a higher or lower state of existence after this life in accordance with your actions while here.

"God's three basic principles of existence are: physicality — mentality — spirituality.

"Physicality is matter used for the construction of formations, machines and instruments of various kinds. Mentality is a specific substance used by mental instruments to create feeling and consciousness within physical bodies. Spirituality is the essence of life that permeates all matter.

"Matter, which is everywhere in Space, is indestructible but changeable. Mental substance, which is everywhere in Space, is indestructible but usable by changing physical bodies. Spiritual essence, which is everywhere in Space, is both indestructible and unchangeable.

"It takes physicality for the construction of the body of a human being. It takes mentality for the operation of the body of a human being. It takes spirituality for the guidance of the mental operation of the human being.

"Within His plan of utilizing everything without the loss of anything, God created man and gave him a duty to perform. To do this duty He furnished him with a physical machine capable of thinking for himself.

"Now it is man's job to utilize that machine to the best advantage by going his duty to God. But before he can utilize that machine for the purpose that it was created, he must learn how it is built and how to operate it.

"Unless a large enough consciousness is developed within one to understand the difference in densities, spheres and scope, as outlined in LAWSONOMY, one cannot comprehend God's stupendous spiritual manifestation."

LAWSONOMY is a worded map outlining Natural Laws and pointing out the right roads leading to success both in this life and the next one as well as pointing out the wrong roads that lead to failure, misery and suffering.

If you understand Natural Laws and live in strict accordance with them no harm will befall you. But if you live contrary to Natural Laws then such harm will attack you, soon or late, in proportions to the offenses you have previously committed.

Death does not mean that harm has overtaken a physical body, as everything composed of matter must eventually wear out and pass away.

Terrible punishment comes to a human being for failure to use his physical body and mental instruments for a good purpose while he has possession of them.

When anyone cheats nature out of the service he was created for he is naturally retrograded to an inferior physical body during the next life as he deserves.

So, the soldier, sailor or airman who does his full duty has nothing to fear concerning death to his physical body.

To fight for principles is right, but to fight for loot is wrong.

The American Form of Government, if honestly conducted, will develop a higher standard of social life than the Dictator Form of Government which forces downward the people at large to the level of boot-licking slaves.

So the soldier, sailor or airman who fights for the American Form of Government, fights for principles and freedom, while the soldier, sailor or airman who fights for the Dictator Form of government fights for loot and slavery.

To live for unselfish principles develops extreme intelligence and the soul that sacrifices the physical body unselfishly fighting for that which is right is rewarded with a more intelligent body to replace the one he has thus sacrificed. He goes nearer to THE ALMIGHTY GOD that Governs all Creation.
